1. A recent examination of the new radio station near Grigorevo (N4241 E2336) shows that the antenna towers are definitely arranged in a square rather than in an arc as some reports have indicated. Two parallel wire screens in a checker-board design are stretched between the antennas. The wire screens between the small antennas are tighter than those between the large ones; the screens are orientated north by northwest and east by northeast. 50X1-HUM
2. The Stara Zagora radio-telephone station is located in the vicinity of Zora, six kilometers east of Stara Zagora. The station has one Blaw-Knox metal antenna.
